ADAM LOVELL, SOCIETY CURATOR OF COLLECTIONS, EXPLAINS HOW TO PRESERVE YOUR FAMILY PHOTOS, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 15 AT THE DETROIT HISTORICAL MUSEUM

DETROIT – The Detroit Historical Society presents its latest monthly Scholar Series presentation with Adam Lovell, the Society’s Curator of Collections, who will be discussing “Preserving Your Family Photos” on Wednesday, January 15 at 6 p.m. at the Detroit Historical Museum.

Photographs are a cherished part of any family collection; ensuring their long-term care and stability should be a priority. This presentation will show you how to identify, preserve, store, and present your family photographs, albums, and paper documents. Learn to care for these treasures and share them with family and friends for generations to come.

You may reserve your spot for this event online at detroithistorical.org or call 313.833.1801. The Scholar Series is free for Society members and $10 for guests.

Lovell has extensive experience in historic object preservation and conservation. In addition to managing the extensive photograph and archive collection at the Society, he has managed historic collections in five states and overseas in New Zealand. Lovell received professional training at the conservation lab of the Oakland Museum of California, the National Archives and Records Administration and John F. Kennedy University’s Museum Studies Program. He currently supervises all archives and collections activities for the Society, including the massive photo digitization project.

The Detroit Historical Museum, located at 5401 Woodward Ave. (NW corner of Kirby) in Midtown Detroit, is open to the public Tuesday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Admission is free for all, all the time.
