Jali Orange rug

The Rug Company's eye-catching pieces top our home décor wish list, which is unsurprising when Vivienne Westwood and Matthew Williamson are among the brand's contributing designers. The only thing preventing us from going wall-to-wall with designer rugs? The couture price tag.

To satisfy the budget-conscious among us, the London-based brand is launching a collection of affordable rugs that don't require selling your house to revamp your living room. These rugs are as bold as the originals, but hand-crafted with a thicker thread and larger knot for a dense texture that's durable enough to use outdoors. Your home – and your picnic – are about to become the envy of the neighbourhood.
